

ANXIOUS TO KNOW HOW HE CAUGHT THE BEAR

Young Lady of Detroit
Writes To John
Bozarth

Says She Would Dearly
Love To Shoot And Lariat

(From Saturday's Daily.)

The Journal-Miner recently published an account of the experience of John Bozarth with a bear on Loco creek. The paper in due course of time reached Detroit, Michigan, where it was read by an 18-year-old girl. It impressed her vividly, giving her an intense longing to come to the great and glorious west. Her feelings are thus described in a letter which Mr. Bozarth received this week, and it reveals a curious phase of human nature:

"Detroit, Mich.

Mr. John Bozarth.

Dear sir—I, the writer of this letter, am a stranger to you, but please do not be offended or angry with me. I read in the paper about the lively experience you had with a bear near Loco creek while out for a ride. I am a young girl, and from a baby up have been wild for the west, and love to read stories and books about the experience people have had out there, if they do not hurt themselves. But when it comes to something that has happened and is real, why I could not resist the temptation to write to you, and I do hope and pray you will not be offended with me for writing to you.

Now, dear sir, as I said before, I would love to hear what the men and people do out west, and to know that a man choked to death a big bear!

O, my, was you not frightened? Now, I should not have said that, for if you had been frightened you could not have killed him, could you? Now, will you please write and tell me all about it, Mr. Bozarth? It must have been delightful to you. My! how I wish I could shoot or lariat! I am coming out west some time, and if I do will you learn me to shoot and lariat? But I would not want to kill anything, it would make me feel

SEED TIME

The experienced farmer has learned that some grains require far different soil than others; some crops need different handling than others. He knows that a great deal depends upon right planting at the right time, and that the soil must be kept enriched. No use of complaining in summer about a mistake made in the spring. Decide before the seed is planted.

The best time to remedy wasting conditions in the human body is before the evil is too deep rooted. At the first evidence of loss of flesh bad. I am going to make a lariat, and try to put it over a big post in our yard, and if I can I will write and let you know, if you are not angry with me for writing and want me to.

Scott's Emulsion should be taken immediately. There is nothing that will repair wasted tissue more quickly or replace lost flesh more abundantly than Scott's Emulsion. It nourishes and builds up the body when ordinary foods absolutely fail.

Now, Mr. Bozarth, will you write me a letter, please, and tell me all about the big bear. I feel so sorry for your horse, poor darling! Did the bear hurt his flank much? I hope not. My, it must hurt him. Please take good care of it for my sake. The men here in Detroit do not care whether their horses are hurt or not, and some poor things go past and look so bad that I just cry. My brother calls me a baby. But I am not, only it makes me feel bad. Don't it you, when you see a poor horse? I bet the men out west treat their horses kind. Arizona must be a very beautiful place. How I would like to live there among the rocks!

I hope you will not be offended with me for writing to you. I want you if you will to tell me all about that bear and your poor horse. My darling mamma said: "Mabel, I don't think I would write; you do not know that man, and he may be offended with you." But I said, "Mamma, I do not think so, and if you only knew how I would love to hear how you caught that bear, I know you would write me. If I am doing wrong in writing, please tell me. For I would do nothing wrong if I knew it. And if I do not hear from you, I will know you think I have done wrong. But I hope not. Have you got any sister? I have none, but I have got a brother whom I love very dearly, and a darling mamma. My, how I wish you could see my dear mamma. I don't believe there is another mamma like her in this whole world. She is so good and kind, and that is why I pray I have not offended you by writing. For if my darling mamma thought I would offend anybody it would make her feel bad. And I would not offend my angel mamma. I would far rather have my hands cut off than wound her. For our mamas are the best friends we have. We have many kind friends and a father, but not one or all together could ever fill the place of a mother. My papa is dead; he was a policeman, and was killed when I was a tiny baby. So you see my mamma and brother are all I have to live for, and to make happy. Sometime mamma gets sad thinking about papa and she cries, and do you know, each tear she drops is like a knife in my heart. Is it not the same feeling with you, if your darling mamma ever cries—and I cheer her up, and she looks like a big baby smiling through her tears.

I hope you will write and tell me all about the bear, and how you caught it. Do girls and their mamas ever go out there. I wish I lived there. I will close now. Please don't be offended with my long letter. I will describe myself a little, so you will know whether I am blue, black or yellow, as the old saying is. My age is 18; have long dark brown hair, and dark blue eyes. My height is 5 feet 4 in. If you write me, address, to the little girl who longs to hear from you. Miss Mabel C., and tell me all about that bear.

THE KINNEY MINES.

Work To Be Started Soon on Good Ground.

(From Saturday's Daily.)

John Kinney, the owner of a group of mining claims in Eugenia gulch, in the Big Bug district, gives the information that arrangements have been perfected to start work on his ground, and that the initial point selected will be the Storm Cloud claim.

This is a very gratifying not alone to Mr. Kinney, but to that section as well, as the general reputation of the properties owned by the above gentleman is of the best, and the only requisite necessary to demonstrate their wealth is the development of them to depth. What limited work has been given these claims has terminated handsomely, and there is every indication that when opened up the investment will be merited to a wholesome degree of satisfaction.

Mr. Kinney has completed the building of houses and made other improvements to facilitate operation, and expects to have the work started early in the coming year. The section in which the Kinney mines are situated is rapidly assuming high favor and many investors are now identified with it.

A Fearful Fate.

It is a fearful fate to have to endure the terrible torture of piles. "I can truthfully say," writes Harry Colson, of Masonville, Ia., "that for blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, Bucklen's Arnica Salve is the best cure made." Also best for cuts, burns and injuries. 25c at all druggists.

FORAKER'S PLAN TO BLOCK STATEHOOD

Throws Down the Gauntlet to the Administration and Proposes Amendments That May Tie Up the Bill "Till the Robins Nest Again"

A dispatch to the Kansas City Times from its Washington correspondent tells the interesting and gratifying news that Senator Foraker has thrown down the gauntlet to the administration. His ultimatum is that there will be no statehood legislation at least in the Senate, unless one or the other of his two amendments are incorporated into the bill. The dispatch is as follows:

Washington, Dec. 11.—All hope for a speedy passage of the statehood legislation through the Senate vanished this afternoon when Senator Foraker announced his intention of proposing two amendments to the Hamilton bill. The alternative propositions were formally submitted by the Ohio senator, and an ultimatum privately given. The ultimatum was that if neither amendment was adopted there would be no statehood legislation at this session. The first proposition was that a line be inserted in that section of the Hamilton bill which provided for the ratification of the constitution which incorporated these words: "In each of said territories."

The significance of this insertion lies in the fact that both Arizona and New Mexico, voting separately, must declare in favor of the constitution before the new state can be admitted. In other words, if a majority of the people of Arizona are opposed to jointure with New Mexico, they can prevent it by a majority vote against the proposed constitution. The proposal of the second amendment, Senator Foraker stated, would depend upon the acceptance of the first. If his amendment was agreed to, he would not press the second and would vote for the bill. If it was not agreed to, he would move to strike out all after the eighteenth section of the Hamilton bill. This means he would move to separate the omnibus bill so that Oklahoma and Indian territory could be voted upon separately from New Mexico and Arizona.

Senator Foraker's Position.

In a conversation with the correspondent for the Star, Senator Foraker said that it was nothing short of a crime to force joint statehood on Arizona against the wishes of its own people, and he would fight the proposition to a finish.

"One or the other of these propositions must be accepted or there can be no legislation," the senator said. Neither Senator Beveridge, chairman of the Senate committee, or other advocates of the joint two state bill would admit that the attitude of Senator Foraker would in any wise change the status of the bill. A senator who will support the Hamilton bill said: "Senator Foraker will be kept busy defeating vote legislation. He can't block everything."

Despite the optimistic observations of the advocates of the Hamilton bill, it is idle to attempt to conceal the fact that many determined senators take the same view as Senator Foraker regarding the New Mexico-Arizona situation. They believe it is so unfair to couple Arizona with New Mexico as to be a crime against the people of the lesser territory. Some of the senators who hold this view have property interests in Arizona, and are selfish in their views. Others are disinterested. As the statehood bill now comes before Congress it is a party question. The President has, in a few words emphatically put, recommended the jointure of Oklahoma with Indian Territory and of New Mexico with Arizona and the admission of the two states.

Again Challenges the Administration.

The Republican steering committees of both the Senate and the House have endorsed the same position, and a Republican caucus of House members in the last Congress twice declared for the bill in this shape. Senator Foraker has again thrown down the gauntlet to the administration. Just how many Republican senators will follow the Ohio senator is not definitely known, but it is apparent that several of them will not hesitate to do so. The only two subjects of national legislation which have so far come before Congress are railroad rates and statehood. Foraker has not hesitated to oppose the President's recommendations in both instances.

In view of the vexed complications which the Arizona and New Mexico problem presents, the Oklahoma statehood boomers are in a close position. They came here determined to dig into the fight and insist that Oklahoma and Indian Territory be separated from New Mexico and Arizona in the consideration of the statehood question. It was necessary for Delegate McGuire, acting under the direction of Republican congressional leaders, to corral them the minute of their arrival and urge them to keep hands off any phase of the New Mexico or Arizona situation. This policy they have wisely adopted.

ROCK AND EYE.

Regulations Governing the Refilling of Bottles.

H. P. Bardshar, collector of internal revenue, has received the following letter giving the decision of J. W. Yerkes, the commissioner of internal revenue, as to re-filling of "rock and rye" bottles:

Sir—Your letter of the 25th ult. has been received, inquiring if a retail liquor dealer can keep a bottle of rock and rye in advance of sale or orders, and "if he can fill the original bottle with rye that has the original rock in it."

If the retail dealer does this for convenience in meeting the orders of his customers for drinks, and does not keep this compound in stock for sale, the case is not one which should be reported for assessment against him as a rectifier.

Ed. Stephens, a young cattle baron of the Williamson valley country, is paying the city a business visit. Enjoyable Occasion.

The new Fraternal Brotherhood's "Hard Times" social dance last evening was a pleasant one and the attendance was larger than usual on such occasions. Mrs. Smith furnished perfect music, and the refreshments were presided over by Mrs. J. W. Stewart and Mrs. J. Tobin. The Raymond Teal combination last night played to a very appreciative audience at the Elks' theater. The engagement last night was a return one, the company appearing here earlier in the season. Special mention is due to Mr. Teal in his clever jokes, songs, and parodies, and with such he is a great favorite. George and Rosa Rehn in comedy team work, and Miss Rehn and Miss Carkeek in songs and dances, form a quartette that win one in admiration of their talented work. Throughout the company is first class, and a larger house should have greeted them.
